"It's Only Second Term" Says Jackson

WASHINGTON — Virtually everyone in Washington was willing today to discuss the possibilities of a third term except President Roosevelt himself.

The president told a reporter who asked him at his press conference yesterday if he planned to seek reelection in 1940 to "go stand in the corner."

He cused the same injunction to a correspondent who put the third term question to him several months ago. Later, when again queried regarding his plans, he failed to advise his questioner about standing in the corner.

Political observers seized on the omission then as indicative that Mr. Roosevelt might be considering the third term issue more seriously.

That was a great mistake, he said yesterday, and repeated his admonition about standing in the corner.

The third term subject was matter for discussion by many others, however.

Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson told a convention of American business clubs here that third term talk was silly, because there is no third term really involved. Mr. Roosevelt's first term, he said, "was cancelled by the courts," and therefore if he runsagain he'll be seeking only a second term.

Raymond Schwartz, New York publicist directing a national "draft-Roosevelt" movement, telegraphed two Democratic Senators accusing them of attempting to split the party over the third term issue.

He accused Sen. Frederick Van Nuys, D., Ind., of attempting to "scuttle the New Deal and sack its progressive principles" by endorsing Gov.-Gen. Paul V. McNutt of the Philippines for the 1940 Democratic nomination.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK — Stocks were mixed in quiet opening dealings today. Bonds also were irregular in dull trade. Cotton futures opened unchanged to 1 point lower.

Japan Lands Troops at Swatow

TIENTSIN, China, — Japan, in a dramatic new drive, landed troops at Swatow today under the guns of a formidable fleet which established a blanket blockade and turned away foreign ships that sought to approach the port.

At the same time, Japanese military and diplomatic chieftains in their first formal conference here decided to continue the blockade of the Tientsin British and French concessions until Great Britain "ends its pro-Chinese attitude."

The Swatoy raid came as a complete surprise, following the blockade of the Tientsin concessions and Kulangsu ,the foreign area of Amoy, 125 miles up the coast from Swatow.

Ostensibly Japan, by occupying and blockading Swatow, intended to close an inlet for Chinese war supplies. Actually, whether as part of a considered plan or not, it meant that the Japanese were closing in on Hong Kong, Great Britain's Far Eastern naval base.

Swatow is 180 miles above Hong Kong. Already Japanese troops were at coastal points in the immediate vicinity of Hong Kong and Japan had occupied Canton, up the Pearl River, since last October.

The American destroyer Pillsbury is at Swatow, with its crew of 122 officers and men.

Capt. John T. G. Stapler left Hong Kong yesterday in the United States destroyer John D. Pope and was expected to divert the ship to Swatow.

The gunboat Asheville was standing by at Hong Kong for orders, and was expected to leave at any hour for the scene.

Approximately 40 Americans and hundreds of Britons, reside at Swatow.

It was believed that the British destroyer Thanet was with the Pillsbury at the scene.

TAKES SLAP AT SOUTHERN GOVERNORS

ATLANTA, Ga.— Southeastern governors were indirectly accused by railway executives today of having political motives behind their desire for revision of rates on goods out of the South.

"The question of inter-territorial rtes referred to by the recent Sotheastern Governors' Conference is now in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission where it will receive expert and unbiased consideration rather than political consideration," said Ernest E. Norris, president of the Southern Railway System.

Norris refused to amplify his statement. He commented on the rate fifht after a conference with executives of 14 other carriers in the South. Norris was chosen spokesman for the group.

Red Cross To Hold Meeting June 27th

"It has been some time since we have held a Grenada County Chapter Red Cross meeting," states Mrs. W. D. Gibson, Chapter Chairman. "On Tuesday, June 27th at 3 p. m. we are having a Red Cross meeting at the Barwin Hotel for the purpose of electing Chapter officials and hearing reports of the work which has been done." Miss Annette McClaran, Field Reprepentative from the National Red Cross Headquarters in Washington spent several days in Grenada interviewing citizens regarding the work and found real interest in Red Cross locally. All members of the Red Cross and citizens interested in the work are invited to attend the meeting June 27th.

MUSHY HUG GETS SENATE'S FAVOR

WASHINGTON — Tallulah Bankhead, glamorous actress daughter of Speaker William B. Bankhead, scored a "hit" in the role of lobbyist and appeared today to have won a partial victory in her fight for continuation of the Federal Theatre Project.

Alva B. Adams, D., Colo., of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee considering the $1,735,000,000 relief bill for the next fiscal year, said he believed that House action, which abolished the project could be compromised.

He suggested that theatre projects might be continued with a provision that they have a local sponsor—a requirement made of other WPA art projects.

Adams volunteered this apparent willingness to make a concession despite the fact that he was not one of the fortunate Senators who received a big hug and a kiss from Tallulah during her one day stand here

Royal Visit Cuts Relief

WINNIPEG, Man. — The "clean up—paint up" campaign held in Winnipeg in preparation for the visit of their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizameth resulted in 240 men leaving the ranks of relief recipients, city officials reported.

MANUFACTURER DIES AT HOT SPRINGS

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. — Joseph F. Cannon, 63, owner of the Cannon towel and hosiery mlils in North Caroline, died here today.

His nurse found the wealthy textile manufacturer dead in bed at the Arlington Hotel where he had resided for five weeks.

Cannon had been in ill health for several months and had come to this health resort last month to recuperate. Immediate cause of death was not known. His home was at Concord, N. C., and the body was to be shipped there this afternoon.

Mills owned by Canoon are located at Kannopolis and Albamarle, N. C.

Mrs. T. Trower has as her guests her mother and sister, Mrs. J. R. Brinker and Mrs. R. C. Davis of West Point, Miss.

Snider Speaks In The Old Home Town

Lieut-Governor J. B. Snider is addressing the voters in the public square, as The Sentinel goes to press (Wednesday night.)

The former Grenadian was introduced to the large audience, by Hon. A. M. Cartohers, local attorney.

Mr. Snider was born and reared in Grenada, and graduated from Grenada High School.

A reception was arranged for him by his former school-mates of the local high school.

May Investigate Labor Board

WASHINGTON—House critics of the National Labor Relations Board sought today a $100,000 investigation of the board and its administration of the Wagner act.

They planned to introduce a new resolution for an investigation, displacing the one which Rep. C. Arthur Anderson, D., Mo. has had pending before the Rules committee for two months.

Several members predicted that Anderson would support their resolution, and indicated that it was drawn after consultations with him.

Rep. Eugene E. Cox, D., Ga., vigorous critic of the board, asserted that unless the Wagner Act "is substantially amended at once, a resolution for investgiation will be put through the House and there will be a real investigation.

Both Anderson and Cox have denounced the administration of the act. Cox is a member of the Rules Committee to which investigation resolutions are referred.

BRITISH START JAP REPRISALS

TOKYO — Great Britain has started informal economic reprisals against Japan in retaliation for the blockade of the British and French concessions at Tientsin, newspapers asserted today.

British ships have begun to avoid taking cargoes of Japanese ore for transport to foreign countries, it was asserted, and one of the great British shipping companies has delayed payments to Japanese interests.

It was not known whether these reports were inspired by government quarters.

They came after the disclosure that foreign minister Hachrio Arita had rejected strong British protests against the Tientsin blockade and against indignities to British subjects at the hands of Japanese blockade pickets.

A foreign office spokesman admitted that Arita had told Sir Robert Cragie, the British ambassador, that there was no discrimination against British subjects in the blockade, and that reports of indignities were probably propaganda.

FAENZA, Italy — Italian poultry experts here are studying the strange case of a hen which, it has been discovered has for the past five years been laying an egg containing two yolks each day.

Sidney Strickland Is New Manager

L. S. McKnight, manager of the Good-Tex Service Station located at Doak and Depot Streets, announces the appointment of Mr. Sidney Strickland as manager of the new Budget Department. Mr. Strickland takes charge as budget manager immediately.

The new budget department as created by Good-Tex Service Station is an innovation to credit buying. The very core of this new plan is unique. Its liberal basis of operation is different. Mr. McKnight states "This new budget pay plan makes possible any size purchase by any motorist, and the extension of convenient liberal terms to everyone."

Thousands of motorists will certainly welcome this revolutionary new budget pay plan to Grenada.

Mr. McKnight also stated that "this plan is as flexible as a rubber band, suits every need and fits every purse. Popularity is certain because it is in time with the times."

The perforated cover of a new saucepan can be locked in place to serve as a strainer.

Filibuster Looms In Washington

WASHINGTON — A filibuster impended in the Senate today threatening legislation on the administration's "must" list for passage before June 30.

Organized by a group of western senators in an attempt to force Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to boost the price of domestically mined silver the tactics jeopardized a careful prepared program for hurried passage of tax, relief and monetary legislation.

None would admit that it was a filibuster but the delaying tactics were the usual ones of filibusters. Sen. Robert R. Reynolds, D., N. C. spoke three and a half hours yesterday afternoon. Sen. Elm

CHEAP ELECTRICITY REMOVES LAST BARRIER TO BETTER LIVING

Cheap Electricity removes the last barrier between the home maker and the modern, time-releasing and labor-saving services she has so long desired in her home.

In order that Grenada homemakers may select the new services that Cheap Electricity has made available to them, local appliance dealers have greatly increased their displays of beautiful and modern home appliances and extend an invitation to all local homemakers to not only see these home servants but to have them actually demonstrated in their home.

Each of the new and efficient appliances now displayed locally bear a "Creap Electricity" operating tag which illustrates by comparison just how economical it is to enjoy Better Living.

The comparative illustrations used include the following:

"The joy of electric cookery" can be yours each day for less than the cost of a loaf of bread;

"You can have the health, protection and convenience of electric refrigeration in your home for an average daily cost of a five-cent candy bar;

"The average daily cost of modern electric water heating is less than the cost of a package of cigarettes;

"The average daily cost of electric cookery, refrigeration and water heating is less than the cost of a handy carton of six soft drinks;

"The average daily cost of the eleceric home laundry (washer and ironer) is less than the cost of a five-cent bar of soap.

"The daily average cost of home cleaning (vacuum cleaner) is less than the cost of a one-cent lolly-pop;

"You can enhance the beauty and restfulness of your home and protect precious eyes an entire evening—3-hours of perfect light under an IES Lamp for less than the cost of one cigar;

The daily cost of operating the average radio—which brings you entertainment - education - sport and untold hours of pleasure — is less than the cost of one doughnut;

"The average daily cost of operating an attic ventilating system is less than the cost of a five-cent package of mints;

"You can be a guest at your own table for the average daily cost of operating all the table appliances used in an average home is less than the cost of two penny-pieces of candy;

"The average daily cost of operating an electrical sewing machine is less than the cost of a two-cent stamp;

Grenada appliance dealers in an effort to adequately serve local homemakers who plan to take advantage of Cheap Electricity, have increased their sales personnel so that demonstrations of all appliances can be made, without obligation, in the homes of customers. This service is offered in order to conserve the homemaker's time and allow her to see modern electrical servants operating under normal home conditions.

WEEKLY COTTON INSECT REPORT

State College — Rains the past week have continued to make very favorable conditions for boll weevil development in any squares punctured up to this time, according to R. P. Colmer, chief inspector of the State Plant Board. Inspectors of the Board and Government entomologists examined cotton on 155 farms in 44 counties during the week, finding weevils on 117 farms or 75 per cent as compared with 82 per cent on this date last year. The infested farms averaged 247 weevils per acre, compared with 226 last week, 164 on this date last year and 67 per acre at this time in 1937. On the farms where squares were large enough to be punctured an average infestation of 14⅓ per cent was found, as compared with 17 per cent this time last year and 7⅓ per cent in 1937.

Weevils are generally abundant throughout the state except along the Tennessee line. The heaviest infestations occur in the north central portion of the state in the counties of Lee, Monroe, Holmes, Yalobusha and Grenada. The lowest infestations were found in Choctaw, Hinds, Madison and Lincoln. As usual, most of the Delta counties showed very few or no weevils.

Weekly cotton insect reports will continue, says Mr. Colmer and the State Plant Board at State College will be glad to send anyone who requests it specific information in regard to boll weevil control.

OLD LADIES' HOME IS IN DANGER

The following announcement from the Board of Managers of this Home for the homeless, should draw a prompt response from all Mississippians who are not deaf to the appeal of helpless old age. We ask our readers to consider the following statement:

"We are now facing the necessity of obtaining, if possible large and immediate gifts to the Old Ladies' Home. The building has been in very bad repair for some time. Lately we had it inspected by two leading architects and several contractors, who all concur in pronouncing it unsafe for occupancy. The foundations, it appears, are almost completely gone; the walls are about to fall in; and our pitiful old charges are in constant danger. Meanwhile, even if we succeed in gettnig the money for rebuilding, which the experts tell us is absolutely imperative we will still have the problem of how to provide shelter and care for our eighty-five inmates (many of whom are helpless while this work is being done.

"Can it be possible that the people of this state, who have been spending thousands on highway beautification, memorial buildings and other material improvements, will turn a deaf ear to the needs of this beautiful charity, which has in the past 35 years cared for over 900 old ladies, who but for this shelter would have suffered actual want? Here now are several past 90 years of age, many over 80, a number bedridden, or otherwise helpless, who have become as little children—In their name we ask help!"

(signed) Maud L. Walthall,
Publicity Secretary.

CANARY COMES HOME ABSENT NEARLY YEAR

Marion, Ill. —The old adage "leave 'em alone and they'll come home," holds good even in the case of missing canaries according to Mrs. Charles Lance.

Her canary escaped in June, 1938, when a cat, springing against the cage, knocked open the small door. The bird disappeared. After an absence of nearly a year, the canary returned and perched on the fence in front of the Lance home.

Mrs. Lance said she had no trouble at all in coaxing it back into its cage.

Grenada needs 500 more houses built within the next two years to solve the housing problem.

The Chances Are Greater For Your Death—

All in all, human beings are funny creatures.

There are some, whom you could not get to toil for a straightforward living—in the heat at any price—who will stand for hours in the most torrid weather—in the hope of getting something for nothing—or winning lotteries, which are not only uncertain but unlawful.

They are willing to take the chance of being run over, knocked down, beat up, spit on, insulted by both white and black, bore their elbows into others or be bored, to take a chance, when many of them could not be bargained with on a mattter which would be a certainty and legitimate in every respect, and which would require some honest toil.

Looking at it from another angle, their gullibility stands out even more prominent for the lack of serious thought, when persons are attracted by advertising claims that crowds running into the ten thousand brace are going to attend—and statistics can prove that any planning to attend such an event—has within the length of the time of such planning—more chance to die than to win.

Yet, they make no plans to die.

Out of approximately 12,000 persons, deaths should average one person per day, assuming that the average span of life is 40 years.

If that same thousand persons anticipated attending a lottery—for thirty days—thirty deaths would—on the basis of the 40 year span—occur.

Thirty blotted out, without a serious thought of it, and only one could win the prize. If

If he could be as fortunate with fate, as with the man-made lottery, he would be due to live 1,200 years.

By what rule of matthematics, then, would it not be true, that a person has as much chance to live 1,200 years as they have to win a lottery, in which 12,000 take part and plan for 30 days.

Needlework Helps Flier

Martinez, Cal.—Harry Sherman, of Portland, Ore., thinks tha tstandard aviation equipment should include a sewing kit. He made an emergency landing here, owing to a ripped wing, but managed to borrow a needle and thread from a housewife, sewed up the damaged wing and hopped off again.

Gussy and Joe Give Thanks

San Jose, Cal. — "Gussy and Joe" gave indications of having studied Emily Post at least. After borrowing the motor car of H. W. Jensen and driving it about 50 miles, they abandoned it with a note lettered and signed by them on the windshield, which read: "Thanks for the car."

Deep Slump in Farm Labor Seems Certain

WASHINGTON — The macine age on American farms has brought greater efficiency in production but at the cost of smaller demand for labor and an increase in crop surpluses.

As the spring planting season closed, experts saw the Department of Agriculture confronted by new problems arising from the steady substitution of machines for men, solution of which may be a slow process.

Mechanization has reduced the amount of man labor in wheat production about 25 per cent since the close of the world war, the bureau of agricultural economics reported. The actual figures, according to surveys made by the bureau in 1919 and again in 1933, were about nine hours per acre in the first year and 2.3 hours in the latter. This reduction, occurrin gin the drier portions of the Great Plains producnig area, dd not extent to the eastern part of the Plains, the bureau said.

The labor embraced in the bureau's survey was expended in preparing the seed-bed, seeding, harvesting, hauling the crop to the local elevator and for servicing machinery in the field. The hours do not cover labor required for general maintenanse of the farm, care of horses in the barn, and general repair of machinery.

"The reduction has come about as the result of mechanization in which the combina- vester - thresher, the motor truck, and larger units of tillag equipment have almost completely displaced the use of horses and the smaller sizes of farm equipment," the bureau said.

One of the country's most serious surplus problems appears to be the direct result of the replacing of horses and mules with machinery. Motorizing farm equipment was accounted for a decrease of approximately 10,000,000 mules and horses during the 18 years from 1920 to 1938, with the result that the one-fourth of the grain crop formerly used to feed this working live-stock has been shifted to the consumers' market.

Eastern, western and midwestern farms have absorbed most of this machinery. The only recent advancement in southern agriculture has been the invention of a cotton picker but it has not been put into operation because it is not commercially available.

Furthermore, the bureau pointed out, it is unlikely that the picker will gain much head way in the near future, because many southern farmers feed and clothe their Negro workers, who would be forced into idleners by installation of the machine.

Sugar cane harvesting, also remains a hand process. Machines have been invented to cut and bundle the stalks, but they have proved less adaptable than old-fashioned native labor, it was brought out.

Mechaniation of corn production still remains to be improved. The only advancement in this field has been a picker-husker, which has not yet replaced hand husking in the field.

AMERICA PROTESTS JAP BOMBINGS

TOKYO — Eugene H. Dooman, United States embassy charge d'affaires, delivered to the foreign office today firm notes protesting against Japanese bombings of American properties in China and against the stoppage of supplies in a Japanese blockade of Kulangsu, the foreign area of Amoy.

Thus the United States threw its weight into the Far Eastern situation despite Japanese efforts to isolate Great Britain in the initial stage of its campaign to exert domination over foreign affairs.

The American action was connected directly with the Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions at Tientsin. This is, at least on the surface, directed solely against Britain.

However, the firm attitude which the United States was understood to have taken in its communications was expected to have important bearing on the entire Far Eastern situation.

The Japanese blockade of Tientsin was regarded as only the first move in a considered campaign to obtain control of all foreign areas in China.

The blockade of Kulangsu started immediately after that at Tientsin, and it affects all foreign residents equally.

At Kulangsu, where Japanese warships have been intercepting food shipments, there are also 42 men of a United States Naval landing party. They, and a corresponding number of British and French marines, were landed to remain there until 42 men of a Japanese landing party left.

United States charge d'affaires Dooman was understood to have presented two notes to Foreign Minister Arita today.

The first called the Japanese government's attentoin to a seres of Japanese airplane bombings since Japanese had given assurances that attacks on American mission and other properties would be discontinued. It added that the United States might public details of negotiations unless prompt satisfaction was assured.

The second note was understood to express surprise that Japan should pursue such tactics as those at Kulangsu at the present time.

Thus the United States attitude of official abstinence from participation in the Tientsin dispute remained unchanged, but its attitude was expected to have weight in the Tientsin issue.

Tax Measure Passes House

WASHINGTON — The Senate gave right of way today to a $1,644,000,000 tax bill designed to fulfill the demands for elimination of business "deterrent" taxes. Senate leaders predicted its passage by the weekend. The house passed it with only one dissentive vote.

Congress must rush the bill to President Roosevelt for signature before July 1 to prevent expiration of $544,300,000 in "nuisance" taxes and the three-cent first class postage rate. The House approved it, 358 to 1, late yesterday. Rep. George H. Tinkham, R., Mass., was the lone dissenter.

The measure, whose chief concession to business is the profits tax, was placed before the Senate Finance Committee today. Chairman Pat Harrison D., Miss., said he hoped to report it to the Senate Thursday in substantially the same form in which it passed the house.

Harrison, who was one of the original advocates of tax revision to eliminate so-called business deterrents, has spent several weeks laying groundwork for smooth and swift passage of the bill through the Senate. Agreements were said to have been reachd that would prevent attempt to obtain general tax revision, and would preserve it in its House form so that a minimum of time would be required for enactment.

Despite the president's recent statement approving proposals to broaden the personal income tax base, it was understood that such action would not be countenanced by the Senate now. Sen. Robert M. LaFollette, Prog., Wis., a persistent proponent of income tax revision, has remained silent. Sen. William H. King, D. Utah, said that if LaFollette doesnt act, he may offer an amendment to broaden the base.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., a member of the Finance Committee, said he had paid little attention to the measure because "it doesn't make any difference how much you do with taxes, there won't be any real recovery while Roosevelt is in the White House."

Another anti-new dealer and committee member, Sen. Walter F. George, D., Ga., said the House bill was "the soundest approach to the solution of our tax problem that we have had for several years," but that he was sorry te measure had not reached the Senate early enough to permit consideration of individual income tax revision.

WHITE LASHES EAST

WICHITA, Kansas, — Lashing out vigorously at the "administration" of the national wage-hour law, Governor Hugh L. White of Mississippi in an address at an annual banquet of the Kansas State Chamber of Commerce here last night called on the West to form a coalition with the South to bring about the downfall of "regional imperialism."

The Mississippi executive, who outlined the plan whereby his state is seeking to bring about a balance between agriculture and industry, declared that problems of the South and West are fundamentally the same. Expressing the belief that should the two sections continue in their present "colonial economic status," both are doomed, he told the Kansans that "ours and yours is a common battle, mutually founded on nature's foremost and fiercest of laws—the law of self-preservation."

"I invite the Governor of Kansas to address the people of my state in its capitol city of Jackson, that Mississippians may meet and know him as the chief executive of a state which is setting out on the path with them toward economic justice . . . I call on him to assume leadership in the closer union of your section and my own."

Recounting the efforts of economic dictators "to keep us as financial provinces," Governor White said that pressure had been applied through the manipulation of both economic control and national politics.

"In a new and intolerable effort to freeze forever their domination of the nation's economic system, and put to scorn the hope of industrial progress in states like yours and mine," he said, "our economic dictators have forged a new political chain with which to bind us. Under the disgustingly obvious false pretense of national uniformity, they have erected an internal tariff of wage standards which refuse us the privilege of normal and gradual education of our farm workmen to become competent industrial employes—whichh refuse us the right to nurture our necessarily infant industries through their early development pe riod—compulsory standards for you and me which the government itself does not recognize in its own operations."

Again voicing the protest of Southern governors against inequalities in freight rates, the Mississippi governor decried a system which fosters "continued concentration of industry and makes difficult the logical location of factories close to raw materials and regional mrkets" and which has so complete a control "that even those railroads which serve the provinces are forced to join the fight against them."

In a graphic deppiction of the condition of Mississippi prior to the launching of its industrial and advertising program three years ago, Governor White described his state as having been a colony, performing the functions of drawing raw materials from its natural wealth, exporting them to the source of its control, and then buying them back in manufactured form.

"Here was a state producing a third of a billion pounds of cottonseed oil per year, yet without one industrial establishment even to refine that oil . . . a state shipping its pulp and buying back its paper, shipping out its wool and buying back its blankets, shipping even its pecans and buying back its candy."

Praising Mississippi's industrial act, he declared that "the plan under which Mississippi [illegible] half-baked product of political experimentation." Since it has been in effect, he said, the number of industrial employes in Mississippi has increased 26.6 per cent the total amount of wages 43 per cent and the value of manufactured products 58.6 per cent.

"Significant barometers by which Mississippi may judge its business trends" the governor continued, "are comparative figures with reference to its sales tax. From a total of $3,066,000 for 1934, receipts from this two per cent levy have advanced steadily to the $6,136,000 record they set in 1938. Thus is reflected an increase in annual retail business from $153,000,000 to $307,000,000.

"Yet I realize, as you do, that the problems of my state cannot be isolated and permanently solved, separate and apart from the greater mutual problems of the South as a whole; nor can the problems of the South be segregated from the still greater mutual problems of all those states which have suffered the sus-

Seeking the source of the "industrial privation" of the South and West, Governor White pointed out that five-sixths of the manufactured wealth of the nation is concentrated in 251 counties, with the remaining 2600 counties possessing only one-sixth.

"States like mine and yours" he told the Kansans, "excluded from the nation's economic feast except for the occasional sop of an agricultural appropriation, are expected nonetheless to contribute the best of our resources and a portion of our manpower to the support of a financial absolutism with which our states individually are unable to cope.

"Already gorged and bloated with eighty dollars out of every one hundred dollars on deposit our regional ravagers continue their unsatiable extractions. The South and West together, left today with only one-fifth of the nation's monetary resources, are learning anew that each loss of blood-money but inspires industrial vampires to still more vigorous sucking."

Stating his belief that a combination of the South and West could better both sections economically, the Southern governor urged that the two sections "forget to snap at each other over the bones that are cast to us in the guise of industrial hand-outs, and combine our energies to demand our rightful place at the nation's economic table."

"I see the ultimate assembly of a council of midwestern governors,' he said. "And I see those governors in joint session with governors of the South . . . lending the combined strength of all their states to re-establishment of our nation as an economic as well as political democracy. Ours is the power to achieve that goal. Should we do less, we shall convict ourselves of intellectual feebleness as we sit idly by to await the day of more violent solution.

"Our nation is one, and it is obvious and apparent that no section of it can long prosper, or even endure, while other sections shrivel into dependencies subjugated by corporate greed and blind self-interest."

We missed several familiar faces at the Tie Plant church Sunday. No one else could fill their places. We wondered if they were home cooking dinner when they should have been at preaching. We expect to go back up there in the not far distant future and if they are absent again we are going to their homes for dinner just to see what they stayed at home to cook.

MRS. MOORE HONORED ON 87TH BIRTHDAY

(By Frances Kent)

There are perhaps young people who doubt the wisdom of Browning's "Grow old along with me; the best is yet to be —the last of lief for which the first was made—our times are in His hands who saith "a whole I planned'—trust God, see all, nor be afraid." But anyone skeptical of the beauty of old age should have seen Mrs. T. H. Moore—Betty Stokes she was—on last Friday evening, June 16th, when her children, grandchildren, even some of the great grandchildren gathered at her home on Margin Street to celebrate with her her eighty seventh birthday. For she was truly a picture of beauty and charm, that charm and dignity which comes only with a life beautifully and unselfishly lived.

The great surprise to Mrs. Moore was not the fact that her children gathered to wish her joy and happiness but that they had, wihout any hint or intimation to her or to her daughter, Miss Eva Ray, prepared and arranged in the attractive back yard of her home tables for a bountiful picnic supper, brought by the guests.

With her old fashioned flower garden forming a beautiful background 'Grandma Moore,' in her dainty black and white voile dress, a faint suggestion of tears in her eyes, stood to try to express to her children just what their thoughtfulness had meant to her. Words are most inadequate when one feels most deeply, but the love shining in her face expressed her appreciation more eloquently than words could have done.

The occasion was a particularly happy one for all the family as Mrs. J. B. Perry, her daughter, had just returned from Sanatorium, Miss., where she had been called on account of the critical illness of her son, Thomas. He has made a remarkable recovery and although not entirely well is expected by attending physicians to continue to improve.

Another cause for great rejoicing was the return to Grenada from a Memphis hospital of another daughter, Mrs. Mary Leigh. She had been in Memphis for two months, rather seriously ill, and it was with grateful and happy hearts that her family welcomed her home

Mr. Perry asked God's blessing and then in lighter vein the group sang "Happy Birthday to You" and Mrs. Moore cut the first slice of the lovely pink and white birthday cake, which was in the center of the long improvised table which held the delicious picnic supper.

Those who were privileged to enjoy this happy affair with the beloved honoree were: Miss Eva Ray, Mrs. Mary Leigh, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Perry Sr., Mr. Henry Ray (Mrs. Ray was out of town); Commissioner and Mrs. Clifford Davis, Mrs. Carrol White, Miss Frances Leigh, Mr. John Leigh, Mr. Henry Leigh of Memphis; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Garner, Mr. and Mrs. Orley Lilly, and children. Betty Ray and Orley, Jr. (Betty is Mrs. Moore's namesake), Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Perry, Jr., and Miss Louise Perry.

FILIBUSTER LOOMS

Thomas, D., Okla., advocate of the issuance of "greenbacks", was ready to make a four-hour speech today.

The Senate was called into session at 11 a. m.—an hour earlier than usual.

Under consideration was the monetary bill, extending operation of the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and the president's power to devalue the dollar. Administration leaders obviously were worried by the silver bloc's maneuver. The President's devaluation authority expires June 30.

Thomas insisted that he knew nothing of a filibuster, but Sen. Key Pittman, D., Nev., said he also was ready to make a long speech.

Thomas had been ready to speak late yesterday, but when he noticed that only six senators were in the chamber he obtained from majority leader Albew W. Barkley, D., Ky., permission to speak today, before he got the permission he threatened to request a quorum call.

There had been as yet none of the more spectacular filibuster tactics, such as frequent quorum calls and speeches on irrevelant subjects. However, one member yesterday had forced the reading by a clerk of long passages from the bill.

If the filibuster develops, parliamentary maneuvers could be employed to get action on the tax and relief measures which must be enacted before July 1, but there was doubt concerning the extension of the monetary authority. Barkley had hoped to obtain a vote on the devaluation provision yesterday, but it was blocked by Sen. Pat McCarran, D., Nev., a leader of the western silver bloc.

McCarran objected to Barkley's attempt to fix a time for voting on an amendment to the monetary bill and frequently interrupted to ask speakers questions.

The Senate was trying to clear the way for consideration of the $1,644,300,000 business tax revision measure, which was rushed through the finance committee in record time yesterday.

McCarran, hoping to force Morgenthau to raise silver prices from the present 64.64 cents an ounce to $1.04 by threatening to compel expiration of the stabilization fund and devaluation powers, said that "uncertainty" over the price has "been most destructive to the morale of the west."

"So you hope—?" reporters began a question.

"I don't hope, I know," he interrupted. "There will be no stabilization until stabilization means something for honest American money, which is gold and silver."

Administration advisers said privately that McCarran probably could enlist enough support to put Morgenthau in an uncomfortable position and perhaps force him to boost the silver price to around 77.9 cents an ounce.

Meanwhile, the tax measure was being prepared for consideration while an appropriations sub-committee continued work on the $1,117,000,000 relief bill containing funds for the Works Progress Administration through the next fiscal year.

The tax bill, designed to answer business demands for tax relief, and which scraps the undistributed profits tax, was approved by the senate committee in less than five hours. All house provisions were left untouched, but a number of additional concessions were made to business.
